Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “Business Challenges”, moderated by facilitator Mike Van Der Vijver, consisted of the following moments:

- 1 Getting to know manufacturing companies;
- 2 Understanding their challenges;
- 3 Fostering match-making.

In the first part of the meeting, we took turns asking questions of the manufacturing companies, so that the creative professionals could take note of the answers and thus get to know the companies better. Direct questions were alternated with stories told by the companies.

This very dynamic format made it possible in a short time to give an overview of the participating companies, so that the creative professionals could choose which company to compete for in the response to the “Challenge”.

In the second part, the manufacturing companies showed a slide with a picture representing the core of their challenge and were given a short time to explain what it consists of.

During the third and final part, match making began, whereby rooms were created via the Zoom platform according to the preferences that creative professionals had previously given for manufacturing companies.

LESSONS LEARNT

The online meeting had a dynamic format that kept the active participation of those present at all times. The division into rooms also made it possible to create a pre-matchmaking session in which people were given the freedom to get to know each other and find meeting points.

FEEDBACK

Although it is too early at this stage to express an opinion on the participants’ prior knowledge of each other, the creative practitioners leaned towards the Avms they had previously chosen to learn more about. During the following meetings it will be possible to monitor the level of effectiveness of the response to the challenge.

FOLLOW-UP

On the one hand, creative professionals will start working on the challenge proposed by the AVMs, and on the other hand, the “new trends” and “new technologies” workshops are reserved for creative professionals, which will offer them specialised knowledge on the two themes described in concepts D.T2.3.2.

Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “Solution pitch” part 1, moderated by facilitator Mike Van Der Vijver, alternated presentations by creative professionals of their work results.

Each presentation was followed by a commentary by the AVM concerned and a short Q&A session.

In this way 3 AVMs saw the creative professionals’ proposals presented in response to the challenges they had launched at the previous event.

LESSONS LEARNT

Creative professionals were asked not to use Power Point to make presentations, but to use more “creative” and “innovative” concepts for their presentations.

In this way, some of the presentations seen proved to be really engaging and certainly caught the attention of the AVMs.

FEEDBACK

We are currently administering questionnaires drawn up at partnership level to engage the effectiveness of this collaboration process. We are awaiting the results.

FOLLOW-UP

Some creative professionals and manufacturing companies decided to use the “individual visit” meeting as an opportunity to explore the technical and economic details of the proposals.

Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “Solution pitch” part 2, as per the event “Solution Pitch” part 1, alternated presentations by creative professionals of their work results.

The presentation of the consulting company proposal was followed by a commentary by the AVM concerned and a short Q&A session.

LESSONS LEARNT

In this session too, creative professionals were asked not to use Power Point to make presentations, but to use more “creative” and “innovative” concepts for their presentations.

Following this decision, the presentations seen proved to be really engaging and certainly caught the attention of the AVMs.

Target Group CCIs:

7 experts in communication and marketing

3 experts social media communication

3 experts in media, film and video production

2 experts in virtual reality application

2 tourism expert

Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “COCO4CCI- The Challenge”, moderated by a facilitator consisted of the following sections:

1. Getting to know the AVM companies representative;

2. Brief of the challenge: What, Why, (for) Who, Where, How

3 Fostering match-making

The Challenge was prepared as second section of one-morning meeting, where in the first part the “Company visit” was carried out. In this way, the challenge has been the most natural continuation of the knowledge of the AVM company participating to this piloting cycle. After providing all the details and basic elements for the presentation of the company, the challenge was presented immediately.

The challenge presentation was carried out in a very dynamic format, a short pitch presenting the main bullet point - What, Why, (for) Who, Where, How - of the company need, followed by deep exchange and dialogue among CCI and the AVM.

At the end of the challenge pitch, the CCI participants were divided into 5 groups, two of them composed by professionals from different companies or freelancers. This group has been maintained during all the process in order to stimulate collective work and exchange, and also the presentation of group-solution pitches.

LESSONS LEARNT

The online meeting had a dynamic format that kept the active participation of those present at all times. The company visit + challenge pitch + divisions of the working group has been an effective format.

Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “Solution pitch” alternated presentations by creative professionals of their work results.

The meeting consisted in 6 successful solution pitch by the teams entitled: The ark team; The Spark team; Lagoon Team; Be in Italy team; Coco team; 4cci team. The last two team were composed by professionals from different companies or by freelancer; the other four were composed by member of the same company.

The presentation of the consulting company proposal was followed by a commentary by the AVM concerned and a short Q&A session.

LESSONS LEARNT

In this session, creatives has to present their solution idea in 7 minute. This was very important to force the pitch and creative format. Each team expressed himself in a way which could represent their added value. Some of the pitches were more traditional, other more creatives. Some proposed a concrete solution, some just a general idea.

Some CCI's expressed doubts and criticism on the issue of intellectual property in this exercise.

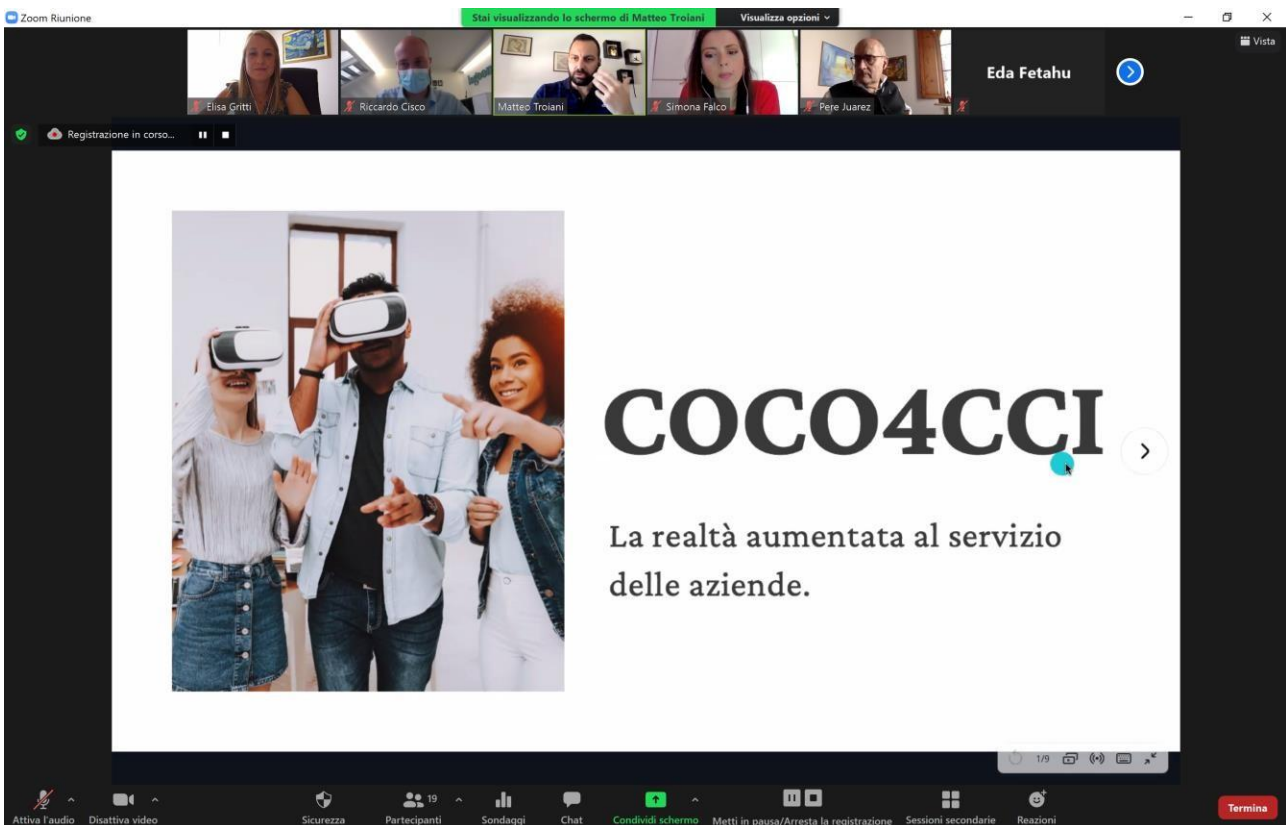

FEEDBACK

We are currently administering questionnaires drawn up at partnership level to engage the effectiveness of this collaboration process.

FOLLOW-UP

Some creative professionals and manufacturing companies decided to use the “individual visit” meeting as an opportunity to explore the technical and economic details of the proposals.

1 Mainetti: International holding company participating with some business units

1 Askoll Group: the group participates with its headquarters and its EVA section on electric mobility

Target Group CCIs:

18 experts in communication and digital marketing.

Event

DESCRIPTION

The meeting “Business Challenges”, moderated by facilitator Mike Van Der Vijver, consisted of the following moments:

- 1 Getting to know manufacturing companies;
- 2 Understanding their challenges;
- 3 Fostering match-making.

In this meeting we gave the two AVMs involved in this piloting cycle the opportunity to present themselves in more detail than in the first meeting, the Mindset workshop.

In the second part of the morning, the manufacturing companies presented their challenges.

The very dynamic format made it possible in a short time to give an overview of the participating companies, so that the creative professionals could choose which company to compete for in the response to the “Challenge”.

In the second part, the manufacturing companies showed some slides with a picture representing the core of their challenge and were given a short time to explain what it consists of.

At the end of the presentation of each challenge (three for Askoll and one for Mainetti), we divided the participants into breakout rooms so that the creative professionals could ask questions to the representatives of the companies to deepen the theme of the challenge.

LESSONS LEARNT

The online meeting had a dynamic format that kept the active participation of those present at all times. The division into rooms also made it possible to create a pre-matchmaking session in which people were given the freedom to get to know each other and find meeting points.

FEEDBACK

Although it is too early at this stage to express an opinion on the participants’ prior knowledge of each other, the creative practitioners leaned towards the Avms to learn more about. During the following meetings it will be possible to monitor the level of effectiveness of the response to the challenge.

FOLLOW-UP

On the one hand, creative professionals will start working on the challenge proposed by the AVMs, and on the other hand, the “new trends” and “new technologies” workshops are reserved for creative professionals, which will offer them specialised knowledge on the two themes described in concepts D.T2.3.2. Knowledge about the relationship between marketing and sustainability will be added during the D.T3.5.1 workshop scheduled in the next week.

Event

DESCRIPTION

The “Solution pitch” Workshop part 3, moderated by facilitator Mike Van Der Vijver, alternated presentations by creative professionals of their work results.

Each 2/3 presentations were followed by a brief commentary by the AVM concerned and a short Q&A session. In total were presented by CCIs, especially in video format, 10 Solution Pitches reesponding to one or more of AVMs previously launched: 10 for Askoll and 10 for Mainetti.

In this way 3 AVMs saw the creative professionals’ proposals presented in response to the challenges they had launched at the previous event.

LESSONS LEARNT

Creative professionals were asked not to use Power Point to make presentations, but to use more “creative” and “innovative” concepts for their presentations. They had to present their solution idea in 8 minutes. This was very important to force the pitch and creative format. Each CCI expressed its own solution idea proposal in a way which could represent their added value.

In this way, some of the presentations seen proved to be really engaging and certainly caught the attention of the AVMs.

We are currently administering questionnaires drawn up at partnership level to engage the effectiveness of this collaboration process. We are awaiting the results.

Although it is too early at this stage to evaluate the creative of effective match-making -collaborations, AVMs seemed impressed and satisfied of the high standard of the new solution ideas presented by creatives as very positive feedbacks were expressed.

FOLLOW-UP

Some creative professionals and manufacturing companies are evaluating to use the “individual visit” meeting as an opportunity to explore the technical and economic details of the proposals
