The Union of Municipalities of Bassa Romagna

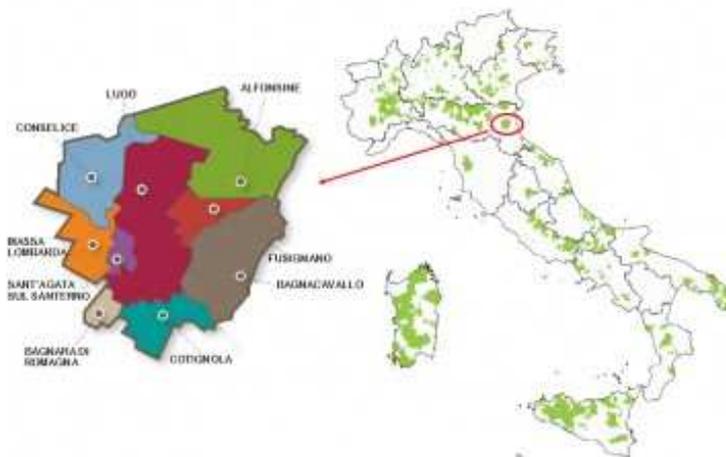

BRIEF OUTLINE

The Union of Municipalities of Bassa Romagna is located in the heart of the Province of Ravenna, between the Adriatic Sea and the Romagna hills, in the north-eastern part of Italy.

It covers a total area of 480 square kilometers and a population of more than 100 thousand inhabitants (102,390 at 31/12/2016).

It is a Public Law organisation, a Local Authority that associates 9 Municipalities: Alfonsine, Bagnacavallo, Bagnara di Romagna, Conselice, Cotignola, Fusignano, Lugo, Massa Lombarda and Sant'Agata sul Santerno.

The biggest center is Lugo, with more than 30 thousands inhabitants, and it is also where the Union has its offices, followed by Bagnacavallo (almost 16 thousands), and the smallest one is Bagnara di Romagna (2,5 thousands).

HISTORY, ECONOMY AND CULTURE

Historically, traces of the first human settlements date back to the Neolithic period and the Bronze Age, but above all there are links to Roman colonization, and then vestiges dating back to the early Middle Ages. But current urban footprints are significantly linked to the later Middle Age and mainly to the Renaissance era of Signorie, when different Lords, Visconti, Sforza and Este, succeeded in their power, leaving relevant architectural and cultural heritage on the whole area.

It is a land with a predominantly agricultural soul, the fields are covered with wheat and corn crops, with endless extents of peaches, pears, apricots, sunflowers, kiwis, apples and rows of grape vines.

In addition to the great agri-food potentialities, the district of Bassa Romagna bases its economic strengths on the importance and diversification of the manufacturing industry, the competitiveness of the logistics system due to its key position with respect to the main communication routes; on a commercial vocation hinged on historical centers and markets.

A rich and orderly countryside, the presence of important natural reserve sites, historic city centers together with more recent towns, rising in a landscape marked by waterways and dotted with parish churches, oratories, country houses, farmhouses, fortresses and noble palaces, are the main reasons why Bassa Romagna is also known as the land of benvivere (fine living), a land on a human scale, to be walked or biked in order to enjoy rare environmental jewels and discover authentic art treasures.

A wide offer of educational, social and health services and the good balance among the nine main towns, that results in a sustainable territory able to avoid urban congestion phenomena, together with the importance of historical and artistic traditions, a marked cultural vitality and quality and traditional products are other, but not less important, features of Bassa Romagna as “fine living” land.
