Season's Greetings

Looking back at 2019

2019 is almost over and it has been a great year for cooperation in central Europe: Our transnational projects have helped cities and regions to function more smoothly and become better places to live in for all of us. Following our experimental call, we selected nine new projects in crucial topics for the future of central Europe. They will soon start taking our current cooperation results forward in close coordination with new partners from other EU funded projects.

We believe that by working together we can find inspiring solutions to further improve our regions and cities at the heart of Europe. #cooperationiscentral not only within our Interreg community but also beyond. We would like to thank all of you, who accompanied us on this exciting journey.

Merry Christmas and let the next year be even better!

New calendar 2020

Our new calendar introduces you to 52 reasons why #cooperationiscentral. Week-by-week you can read about our projects that help central European regions and cities become smarter, greener, more social and better connected places. This year, to save us from tears, we'll give it to someone special.

#cooperationiscentral: New stories published

What connects the Chanforan Monument in Piemonte, the Evangelical Church of Peace in Jawor and the Wartburg Castle in Eisenach? It is the new Route of Reformation. This route gives you the opportunity to spend your next holidays (maybe already over Christmas?) in the footsteps of Martin Luther and other great reformers. But how is this actually linked to transnational cooperation?
